

Lifelong Learning Presents

The Barnert Temple

JEWISH FILM FESTIVAL

3 NIGHTS, 3 FILMS, 3 DISTINCT JEWISH STORIES

Wed., March 3, 7:30 pm

Live and Become

Fundamental issues of ethnic and religious identity and the agony of exile are at the heart of Live and Become, an intermittently compelling swatch of recent Israeli history filtered through the experience of an African immigrant.

Wed., March 10, 7:30 pm

Crossing Delancey

Can an independent, contemporary woman find happiness with a guy who sells pickles? A sweet tempered urban love story, Crossing Delancey argues that true love may be in the first place you look. Though a very traditional love story, Crossing Delancey has its moments of soul searching drama and an unlikely romance.

Wed., March 17, 7:30 pm

Autumn Hearts: A New Beginning
(Original title: Emotional Arithmetic)

Autumn Hearts: A New Beginning tells the story of three people who formed a life-long bond while housed at a detention camp during World War II that are reunited some 35 years later after being separated from one another.

Popcorn, coffee and tea will be served.

All are welcome.

Please RSVP to Natalie at ncohen1847@barnerttemple.org.
